

Chesterfield Public Library Behavioral Policy

Statement: We welcome visitors of all ages to the library and desire to provide a safe and appropriate environment for everyone. The library staff is available to assist as needed.

For the safety and comfort of all persons using the library, all are expected to act in a responsible manner inside the building, or on the library grounds. Use of the library and its services may be denied by the librarian for due cause.

Disruptive Behavior: Disruptive and/or disorderly behavior is any behavior that disturbs other library visitors or interrupts the orderly course of library business or meetings. Such behavior will be addressed by the library staff. Persons may be asked to leave if the behavior persists. If not resolved, library privileges may be revoked. Library users younger than 18 years of age, accompanied by a parent or guardian, will meet with the Library Director before reinstatement of privileges can occur.

Damaging any of the library's collection of materials or equipment, defacing library property, or threatening library staff or other visitors are misdemeanors and will be handled by the police.
